AGENTS WANTED.
HUMANIA HAIR COMPANY, 23 Duane Street (Dept. 100) NEW YORK
NEW SERUM PLANT WILL SUPPLY DEMAND.
University of Missouri Has New Plant For Manufacture of Hog Cholera Serum.
Soon after January 1 there will be put into operation by the veterinary department of the University of Missouri the most complete hog cholera serum plant in the country. This plant, which is costing $50,000, will supply all the demands for serum from the farmers of the state. The site is 90 acres of land two miles north of Columbia. When running at full capacity the plant will handle 1,500 hogs all the time for the production of serum. About the same number is required for the production of virus to be used in hyperimmunizing the serum hogs. While the first class of hogs are not injured for food, those used to produce virus must be destroyed.
The plant consists of a hog barn, serum laboratory, virus laboratory, infection pen and tank room. The hog barn is used for housing hogs during the process of hyperimmunization. It has a capacity of 1,000 hogs. It is divided into pens, and has an exercise yard opposite each pen. In the building there are large provision rooms and two pens for washing and crating the hogs before they go to the laboratory. The barn has a grandstand floor, has good sewer connections and is well lighted and ventilated.
The serum laboratory is where the hyperimmunization is done and where the serum is drawn and prepared. Hyperimmunization consists of first vaccinating with virus and serum, giving the disease and the preventive at the same time. Later another dose of virus is given and after another period a large final large dose. After this dose has had time to produce the maximum immunizing effect the blood is ready to be drawn and prepared for use. When the clot is taken out and preservative added to it, it is sent to the cold storage room until tested.
The manufacture of the virus is the expensive part of the process. A large number of hogs must be used and when a hog enters the infection pen his days are numbered. After the disease has reached the proper stage the hog is taken to the preparation room of the virus laboratory. This laboratory is a building entirely separated from the serum building. In the preparation room the hog is washed, shaved, and shrouded in cloths wet in antiseptics. In the sticking room all the blood is drawn from him and the carcass goes to the tank room. It is heated under pressure to kill the disease and is used for the production of fertilizer. The blood virus is prepared for use in hyperimmunizing just as serum is prepared. The plant will be working almost to its full capacity as soon as it is opened. Dr. J. B. Gingery, assistant professor of veterinary medicine, says that the demand is so great now that 1,000 hogs would be needed to supply all. The present plant has only a small capacity.
